Wednesday Wrap-up

The Challenge and Opportunity of Total Worker Health

L. Casey Chosewood, the Senior Medical Officer for Total Worker Health at NIOSH, told attendees at this morning's General Session at AIHce 2013 that occupational health needs to encompass more than just workplace risks if America is to reverse several disturbing trends. He encouraged attendees to see this challenge as an opportunity to have an even greater influence on improving workers' lives than that afforded by traditional industrial hygiene and occupational safety and health interventions, which focus predominantly on the workplace. Special Announcements

Center for Safety and Health Sustainability Submits Letter to USA Today on Bangladesh Tragedy

USA Today recently published a letter to the editor by the Center for Safety and Health Sustainability (CSHS) on last month's garment factory collapse in Bangladesh that killed more than 1,000 workers. The letter encourages corporations to not only adopt a sustainable business model, but to also ensure that that model incorporates sustainable occupational safety and health practices.
